

“The Hand” - Unfinished / Ongoing process

This is a drawing of a hand that I have been getting done as a form of study. Hands have always been a bit tricky for me to draw and with new understanding of the tools I've been using for drawing, I decided to try and get a very realistic looking hand drawn. It is still in early stages and I'm excited to get working on it.

Methods

So far, I'm using the same method I used for the Mustang drawing. Three layers of shading with three different degrees of opacity. Getting the details right has been the trickier part so far. I'm sure it will look awesome in the end.

